A 2003 study in the New England Journal of Medicine concluded that some kids on drugs like Lupron developed osteopenia and lost too much bone density during a three-year course of treatment to justify the therapy. In other words, the lifetime risk of breaking a bone outweighed the reward of growing a bit taller

Long Texts

Homosexuality from scientific point of view

For centuries, homosexuality was considered a disorder in normal societies. But in 1973, homosexuality was removed from the list of mental illnesses in the USA, and the countries of Western Europe followed suit. Overnight homosexuals became 'normal'. Homosexual activists refer to that decision of American psychiatrists. Can a political decision teach someone healthy? It is known that in science the argument of the majority is the weakest argument. All the more so because the American Psychiatric Association made that decision not only under pressure, but also with barely a majority! And how did this 'greatest collective healing' in the history of mankind come about?

Since the subject of homosexuality is extremely contemporary and important, here we bring a comprehensive text by experts on the subject.

Homosexuality, due to its nature, was forbidden in most societies as harmful to both the individual and the community. However, as we approach the end of time, everything that is characteristic of the enemy of God is gaining momentum and there are more and more victims of this serious psychological disorder. It is certain that all this points to the deepest crisis of the family in which the relations are far from what they should be, so young people in crisis reach for drugs, alcohol or sexually disordered behaviour. However, the role of the mass media and the propaganda that is carried out is not at all negligible, and it can be said that in some cases it is even predominant.

The text points to the essence of the problem, unlike the propaganda of homosexuality imposed by the mass media. After that, of course, no one takes care of them, but the broken families fight the hell that their life has turned into as they know how.

"And no wonder; for Satan himself turns into an angel of light" (2 Cor. 11, 14).

The text is also recommended to parents, who need to know what is behind the disorder of homosexuality, as well as that it can be successfully treated.

The editors distance themselves from the teachings of the Catholic Church from the end of the text.

The greatest collective healing in the history of mankind

For centuries homosexuality in normal societies was considered a disorder. But in 1973, homosexuality was removed from the list of mental illnesses in the USA, and the countries of Western Europe followed suit. Overnight homosexuals became 'normal'. Homosexual activists refer to this decision of American psychiatrists. Can one political decision teach someone healthy? It is known that in science the argument of the majority is the weakest argument. All the more so since the American Psychiatric Association made that decision not only under pressure, but also with barely a majority! And how did this 'greatest collective healing' in the history of mankind come about?

To answer that question, it is necessary to go back to the time of the First World War. The communists then believed that their moment had come, they called workers all over Europe for an uprising. From Russia to Germany, a revolution was raised that ended ingloriously, the workers of the West, that mythical proletariat refused to play the role Marx intended for it. And not only did they refuse to play that role, but they clubbed and shot Rosa Luxemburg and the Marxist insurgents in Bavaria and toppled Béla Kun's communist regime in Budapest after just a few months. Even in Russia, where the Bolsheviks came to power through violence and fraud, the Russian people did not convert to communism, but hated them. None of what the Marxists predicted came true. Their moment came and went, and they turned out to be fools.

Demolishing the foundations of society

How did the Marxists react? Most were disappointed, some, like Mussolini, turned to nationalist ideas, and those who remained faithful to Marx pointed to Christianity and tradition as the main culprit for the failure. As long as traditional values and Christianity, that immune system of the West, are not eradicated from the soul of Western man, revolution will be impossible. The workers 'betrayed' the revolution, so the new soldiers of the revolution were found among homosexuals, lesbians, feminists.

György Lukacs, a former agent of Béla Kun, fled Hungary after the collapse of the revolution. He rightly called his ideas 'demonic'. He promoted debauchery among women and children [2], which aimed to destroy the family as the foundation of Western society. Neo-Marxists have decided to change their strategy: instead of first conquering power and then imposing culture, they should first change culture, and then power will come into their hands [3]. In 1923, Lukacs and other neo-Marxists founded the 'Institute for Social Research' at the University of Frankfurt, which would later become known as the Frankfurt School. About ten years later, fleeing from the Nazis, they packed up their ideology and came to America. In the fifties and sixties, they spent the so-called cultural revolution, took over almost the entire entertainment industry, media, schools, colleges. labeling, declaring opponents fascist and mentally deranged was the way they operated. They called every condemnation of their actions and the presentation of different views 'hate speech', even though hatred was what radiated from their books, pamphlets and overall actions: hatred of family, religion, morality, tradition.

Science in the service of concealing sexual perversions

At the same time, Alfred C. Kinsey, the favorite ideologue of homosexual activists, was active. Hiding behind the facade of a scientist, he advocated the acceptance of homosexuality, but also necrophilia, pedophilia, zoophilia. The reasons for this were of a personal nature, since Kinsey suffered from a whole series of sexual disorders and perversions, from homosexuality and pedophilia to sado-masochism. In 1947, Kinsey founded the 'Institute for Sexuality Research', from where the well-known sexual revolution of the 1960s would start. Instead of doing scientific research, the worst sexual perversions took place behind the walls of that institute, orgies with colleagues and their wives, students and all with cameras. Kinsey's biographer Jones reports:

"After the camera started buzzing, the world's foremost expert on human sexual behavior would insert a pointed object into his urethra; after that, he would tie the scrotum with a rope, and then he would begin to pull the rope hard and push the object in question deeper and deeper into the urethra." [4]

Starting a sexual revolution required more than indulging sick sexual fantasies in the secrecy of an institute, and Kinsey knew that. Therefore, he wrote two books and always appeared in public as a neutral scientist. His strategy was to declare sexual deviance to be common, and according to his logic, when something happens often, then it is normal. His claim that homosexuals make up about 10% of the population still stands today. However, it is little known that Kinsey conducted his research mainly on prisoners and sex offenders, among whom, as he himself admits, there were several hundred male prostitutes [5]. Posing as a neutral scientist, Kinsey frantically gathered information to help him cover up his own sexual perversions.

"A quiet and calm sixty-year-old man with a kind and gentle nature - a wonderful and unobtrusive man in general." [6]

On pedophilia, Kinsey further writes:

"It is difficult to understand why a child, unless it is culturally conditioned, would be upset when someone touches his genitals, when he sees the genitals of others or when he experiences some more specific sexual contact." [7] The Kinsey Institute and the Frankfurt School carried out a wide revolution and influenced millions of young people in the West, through Hollywood, the media, universities, schools, and books. In the sixties, the revolution spread like a contagion.

Already in 1968, under the influence of Kinsey, homosexuality was deleted from the list of sociopathic disorders in the DSM (Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders). In 1973, under the threats and intimidation of homosexual activists and other lobbies, and at the suggestion of Dr Robert L. Spitzer (more will be said about this distinguished scientist and doctor, and about his difficult changes in the following text), homosexuality was deleted by political decision from the list of disorders.

Dr Charles Socarides is the author of numerous books and winner of the Distinguished Professor Award from the Association of British Psychologists and Psychoanalysts (APP). Here's how he describes how the American Psychiatric Association changed homosexuality from a pathological condition to a 'lifestyle':

"Homosexual activists did not attack priests then. They attacked members of the secular 'clergy', the psychiatric community, and neutralised it by radically redefining homosexuality itself. In 1972 and 1973, they managed to win over the leading people in the American Psychiatric Association, and through a series of tricks and direct deceptions, they 'cured' homosexuals overnight - by court order. They managed to get the association to declare that same-sex relationships are not a disorder, but just a 'condition' - as neutral as left-handedness. Those of us who did not agree with this new political definition were soon silenced at our own professional meetings. Our lectures were canceled at the universities, and scientific journals refused to publish our scientific papers." [8]

'Flood' of homosexuals in the media

In the 1960s and 1970s, students of the Frankfurt School and the Kinsey Institute (two of Kinsey's most famous students are Hugh Hefner, the founder of Playboy, and Harry Hay, the founder of the homosexual movement) took their positions in society, and the doors of the media and colleges for homosexual activists were slowly opening. Today, homosexuals 'flood' the media, and they try to relativise their illness and reduce everything to a variant of normal. Ever since the seventies, various series and films have been popularised where there are homosexual characters, who are designed as interesting and positive characters, which is in contrast to real life. Dr Socarides had the opportunity to learn all the tragedy of homosexuality through the example of his own son. And yet, it was Dr Socarides, along with Dr Anna Freud, who had the greatest success in treatment. He treated homosexuals for forty years, and reports about ¾ of successful treatments. About the popularisation of homosexuality in the media from the seventies onwards, he writes:

"Television and film directors have started making movies and series that promote homosexuality as a legitimate way of life. A homosexuality watchdog has ordered Hollywood on what it can and can't film about homosexuality. Major publishing houses refused to publish books that were against the homosexual revolution. Homosexuals and lesbians have influenced sex education in American schools, and homosexual activists have taken leading positions in American colleges. Legislatures of federal states repealed laws against sodomy." [9]

In recent years, we have witnessed an aggressive campaign in all Croatian media that blindly followed the work patterns of Hollywood and MTV. In shows such as 'In magazin', 'Red Carpet', 'Big Brother', 'Farm', sick and perverted behavior is constantly propagated. People who need professional help are often 'stars' or even hosts of these shows. Such content is broadcast in the afternoon and early evening. What do you tell your children when they see two men kissing on television?! Stjepan Lice was a member of the council of HRT and spoke openly about the homosexualisation of society:

"Homosexuality is increasingly becoming a matter of fashion, because it is set as a criterion and a path to modernity." We are witnessing the homosexualisation of our society. But homosexuality is not a way of life, but not finding his way in it. [10]

You only have to look at the catwalks. In recent years, skinny girls without breasts who look like little boys, as well as beautiful, well-groomed and feminised mannequins, have been promoted. The trend of metrosexuals does not need to be explicitly emphasised. The fashion and pharmaceutical industries are full of homosexuals. Therefore, it should not be surprising that many people have vague ideas about this disease and that more and more people are confused and misled by propaganda and stereotypes from the media. Some of the most monstrous mass murderers were homosexuals (A. Cunanan, J. Dahmer, JW Gacy), but you will never find anything about them in the media, because they do not fit into the false image of benevolent and cheerful 'gays' that the media imposes on us, in a series of fictitious characters from movies and series, usually played by heterosexuals. That is why today many people repeat as if hypnotised that homosexuality is not a disease but a 'condition'. Former homosexual activist and cured homosexual, Michael Glatze sees the media as one of the main causes of homosexuality:

"Homosexuality took almost 16 years of my life and filled my life with lies with the help of the mass media targeting children and trying to convince them that homosexuality is normal behavior." [11]

Not every homosexual can be cured, nor can every heterosexual be turned into a homosexual. But our famous psychiatrist Dr Vladimir Gruden confirms the important role of the media:

"Homosexuality is lurking in many people, and it will especially develop if it is advertised in different ways." [12]

And Rabbi Rosenberg from the association of cured homosexuals and lesbians 'Jonah' concludes:

"Many ex-homosexuals say that the deepest reason for their depression was the great pressure they were exposed to in order to consider their feelings innate and unchangeable."

In the media, on the other hand, the Catholic Church is constantly attacked because of pedophile scandals in its ranks, but you will not find the fact that according to research, homosexuals are significantly more prone to pedophilia than heterosexuals [14] [15]. The media deliberately ignores the fact that 97% of these pedophile scandals date back to the 1960s. In 1985, when the Catholic hierarchy in the USA and elsewhere in the West tacitly allowed the ordination of homosexuals and that more than 80% of the victims of priests - pedophiles were boys. Already in the early eighties, the Church re-introduced the ban on the ordination of homosexuals, which bore fruit. Only 3 percent of pedophilia cases in the Catholic Church in the USA occurred after 1990 and none in the period 2000-2004. [16]

We see that it is possible to solve the problem to some extent by better monitoring homosexuals, but is it possible to completely cure them and successfully resocialise them?

Treatment of Homosexuals

The aforementioned Dr Robert Spitzer, professor of psychiatry at Columbia University, is the scientist who encouraged the American Psychiatric Association in 1973 to remove homosexuality as a mental disorder from the DSM. Over time, under the weight of scientific facts, Spitzer changed his position. In 2001 and 2003, he published his analysis of the healing of homosexuals, based on 200 cases of cured homosexuals and lesbians, and requested the return of homosexuality to the list of diseases. He was reluctant to talk about the threats to his family, which then followed. [17]

Dr Spitzer is not the only one who has changed his mind. The famous psychologist Richard Cohen is a cured homosexual, and today he is successfully treating homosexuals himself. Italian musician Giuseppe Povia was cured by clinical psychologist Joseph Nicolosi, and later two of Povia's friends. Povia once stated:

"People are not homosexuals, they become homosexuals depending on who they associate with". [18]

Founder of the lesbian magazine Venus (1995) and lesbian activist, Charlene Cothran publicly announced in 2006 that she had left the homosexual lifestyle. The healing of the leading homosexual activist, the founder of Young Gay America (YGA) magazine, is also interesting. It was a 'mainstream' magazine commissioned by schools, libraries and other public institutions, and it promoted homosexuality as a way of life. Michael Glatze ended his 10-year relationship with another co-founder of that magazine, and publicly announced that he is no longer gay. Glatze says:

"Healing the wounds caused by homosexual behavior is not easy - there is little real support. And what exists is shamed, ridiculed and silenced by the aggressive rhetoric of the mass media promoting homosexuality as a normal form of behaviour or made illegal by twisting the law. I had to go through mockery and 'voices' rejection from all who find out about it. The goal of the homosexual agenda is to make people stop altogether and ask the question of leaving homosexuality, regardless of whether it is possible.

I denied the truth for a long time and I still feel guilty about it. As a leader of the 'gay' movement, I have had the opportunity to speak to the public many times. If I had the chance to take back some of the things I said, I would. Now that I know that homosexuality is lust and pornography rolled into one,

I will never let someone convince me otherwise, no matter how nice their words and how sad their story. I saw it, I know the truth.

In my experience, 'coming out' from the influence of the homosexual mindset was the most liberating, the most beautiful and the most incredible thing that I have ever experienced in my own life." [19]

These are the words of the president of the association "Exodus International" which brings gays and ex-gays together, Alan Chambers:

"The fact is that there are tens of thousands of men and women who, like me, have overcome homosexuality. We are living proof!"

Despite these encouraging words, the very thought of treating homosexuals provokes aggression in homosexual activists [20]. Scientific facts, however, say otherwise than the slogans of these activists. Of those patients who access therapy, about 30 - 60% are completely cured [21]. In the last decades alone, more than 25,000 homosexuals have been cured in the USA and the Netherlands [22]. They have successfully treated and are still treating homosexuals Gv Ardweg, Ch. Meves, R. Cohen, J. Nicolosi, Ch. Vonholdt, L. Payne, W. Gasser, Anna Freud, V. Frankl, Ch. Sociarides and many others. Even if we accept the misconception that homosexuality is incurable, isn't that why it's not a disease? Many diseases are incurable, such as AIDS or schizophrenia, so no one thinks of declaring schizophrenics normal.

The founders of psychiatric and psychoanalytic science as well as psychology were unanimous on this issue. Already in 1932, Professor Schultz-Hencke wrote that various forms of homosexuality, including certain personality characteristics, which we can often observe in homosexuals, are psychological disorders. Alfred Adler and Wilhelm Stekel were of the same opinion. Freud had no doubts either, for him homosexuality was a mental disorder, and he developed different methods of treating homosexuals. In particular, CG Jung went far in this, who explained:

"A homosexual man is unable to find masculinity deep within himself. Therefore, he tries to find it on a biological-sexual level." [23]

Viktor Frankl, the father of logotherapy, called homosexuality a perversion and a disease [24]. Recently, scientists are beginning to admit what Freud, Jung, Frankl and others never questioned - homosexuality is a disease. In the last few years, scientific works by mainstream scientists have been published that prove the connection between homosexuality and psychopathology, such as those of Dr. JM Bailey, Dr. G. Remafedi and Dr. R. Friedman [25]. About the works and studies according to which homosexuality can be successfully treated, we have Dr. Verdijana Pavlović spoke [26]

Are homosexuals born or made?

Often in discussions with homosexual activists, the phrase is heard: "We are born this way." Is that true? The famous Austrian psychiatrist E. Ringel says:

"Homosexuality has nothing to do with heredity, predispositions or hormonal disorders, it is actually a neurotic symptom, a textbook example of a sexual symptomatology behind which a personality disorder is actually hidden." [27]

I. Bieber goes even further: "There are no homosexuals, only latent heterosexuals." [28]

And one cured homosexual, C. Cook, noted:

"Our heterosexuality lies buried by thousands of fears." [29]

The cured homosexual, psychologist Dr. R. Cohen, confirms the same:

"Nobody is born a homosexual." [30]

Cohen says that homosexuality is not a sexual problem, but a developmental disorder with respect to one's identity. An important role in the development of homosexual disorder is played by the relationship with the father. The father's masculinity is very important for the child's development. This is confirmed by the research of Dr Satinover, who has been researching homosexuality for decades. He discovered that there are almost no homosexuals among orthodox Jews, which speaks against the thesis that homosexuals are born that way. [31]

Although millions have been spent on it, so far no one has been able to prove that homosexuality is hereditary. All such attempts have failed, although homosexual lobbies have generously sponsored research. The most famous such research, that of Le Vay from 1991 and D. Hamer from 1998, showed that the 'gay gene' is actually a 'non-existent phantom'. Let's suppose that someone would succeed in proving that homosexuals are born this way. What would that change? Homosexuality would still remain a disease. People are also born with manic depression, schizophrenia, Down's syndrome and other diseases.

Homosexuality as evil, not a variant of nature

Why is a lion with three legs a deformation, not a variant of nature? Because four legs are necessary for normal functioning and survival. If only one percent of lions were born with three legs, but with some technique could run and hunt just as well as lions with four, then the three-legged lion would be just a variant of nature. But because of the meaning that four legs have for a lion, the three-legged lion is a deformation, not a variant, because it lacks what it should have. Let's apply that to homosexuality. Why is homosexuality a deformity? Observing the sexual structure of a man and a woman, and analyzing their purpose, shows that the sexual union of two men is not possible. Whatever these two do remains sterile and no real union takes place.

Animals as role models?

Another frequent excuse of homosexual activists is that homosexuality can be found among animals and that homosexuality is therefore natural. This is a confusion of terms. Not everything that is 'ordinary' in nature is natural. Otherwise, they should eat raw meat by tearing it from animals. Namely, this is how beasts feed. But even in nature, homosexual relations are not common, it is only a defect of nature. Otherwise, nature itself would have disappeared a long time ago. In fact, when a monkey rapes another monkey, it's not about homosexuality, it's about showing dominance. We can see the same phenomenon in dogs and some other animals. He is obviously trying to prove the unprovable. Man is not an animal, and cannot refer to animal patterns of behavior. Dr Toševski says:

"Homosexuals, bisexuals and that layer from scientific circles that 'understands' or is indifferent to this worrying phenomenon, find justification for this phenomenon in humans in the fact that 'homosexuality' is found in many animals. They are absolutely wrong, because what resembles homosexuality in unconscious animals, neither in permanence nor in harmful effects, is the same as homosexuality in conscious man." [32]

Contemporary ignorance

Dutch doctor Dr Gerard JM van den Aardweg has been researching homosexuality and other sexual and neurotic disorders for 35 years. Over 300 homosexuals, mostly men, and many other sexual neurotics and people with non-sexual neurotic disorders underwent his individual therapy. Dr Van den Aardweg accuses the profession, politicians and religious leaders of politicisation and ignorance:

"Our knowledge about homosexuality has increased in the last century. Despite the differences in the use of terminology, different psychological and psychoanalytic approaches in understanding and therapy are unique regarding certain basic features of homosexuality and some underlying causes. Little is heard about this because existing knowledge has been forced out of universities and the media due to tyranny and politicisation, and ignorance is cultivated.

The ideas of most doctors, psychologists, politicians, journalists and religious leaders are mainly based on ignorance and outdated theories.

A correct understanding of homosexuality is impossible because it is seen as an isolated phenomenon. It belongs to a larger group of disorders that also includes exhibitionism, pedophilia, auto-eroticism." [33]

And what is homosexuality in fact and, most importantly, how does this mental disorder arise?

Homosexuality as a disease: the emergence of same-sex sexual urges

Already from the well-documented fact that we have homosexuals who have identical twins (i.e. brothers/sisters with identical genetic records) heterosexuals, we can conclude that homosexual tendencies are not innate. Case reports often point to environmental factors, which explain the development of different sexual preferences in genetically identical children, and support the conclusion that same-sex orientation is the product of interrelated environmental influences. [34]

In persons who feel same-sex sexual orientation, we often encounter one or more of the following:

- Absence of father, father figure or alienation from father in early childhood, because the father was experienced as hostile or uninterested, violent or alcoholic
- The mother was too protective (of boys)
- The mother asked for help too much and was demanding (with boys)
- The mother was unwilling to establish an emotional connection (for girls)
- Parents failed to encourage the child's identification with their gender
- Lack of rougher play (boys)
- Failure to identify with peers of the same sex
- Dislike for team sports (boys)

- Poor eye/hand coordination and related teasing of peers (boys)
- Sexual abuse and rape
- Social phobias or extreme shyness
- Loss of parents due to death or divorce
- Separation from parents during critical stages of growing up [35]

If the child's emotional and developmental needs are adequately addressed, the development of same-sex attraction is highly unlikely. [36]

If more than one of the above-mentioned factors occur at once, the probability of the occurrence of a homosexual disorder that is adopted in early childhood is greater. At an immature age, the child's development is characterised by the absorption and adoption of behavioural patterns, without strong control and filters of consciousness that have not yet been developed in the child. Seduction is very rarely the cause of homosexuality, in women it is only sometimes rape.

According to Dr Richard Fitzgibbons, the main factors that lead to a weak male identity, as a prerequisite for the development of homosexuality, is a weak connection with peers - in America, often due to teasing and rejection due to weak sports abilities, a weak emotional connection with the father, and distrust in female love - often due to the experience of betrayal by the mother or excessive demands that mothers put on their sons. [37]

Homosexual boys are most often 'soft', overpassive, 'dear'. These are not innate traits but acquired habits. If the mother played a central role in the boy's life, then he imitates his mother in many ways, her interests, the way of speaking, and as a result, he will not behave like other boys, and then he will easily feel 'different from others'.

Homosexuality is a complex of inferior sexual value. Homosexuals have an infantile view of themselves, the so-called fragile identification, usually a bad image of the father. They see themselves as victims, which is what they have in common with other people with emotional neurotic problems. Due to lag in pre-puberty and lack of male self-confidence, they cannot feel real attraction towards women. A young man feels less valuable compared to his peers, tends to passionately admire and idolise his peers, and such longings are slightly eroticised in pre-puberty. Because of the retardation in pre-puberty, there is often infantile self-pity - 'poor me', because self-dramatisation is characteristic of the egocentric child in pre-puberty. One of the stages of pity is marked by rebellion, anger, protest, tendency to revenge.

The rule of 'reversal' applies to the homosexual choice of partner: in the desired partner, those qualities that the adolescent believes he does not possess are seen as attractive. Thus, most male homosexuals look for 'masculinity' in their partners.

The consequences of pre-pubertal emotional fixation are multiple; the drive for self-pity that manifests itself in different ways, the retention of adolescent emotions, thoughts, desires, and since homosexual desire stems from a fixed dynamic of self-pity, it finds short-term satisfaction. That is why Adler defines homosexuality as sexual neurosis or psychological infantilism.

In women with lesbian tendencies, we often find that their fathers were "emotionally intense", alcoholics or abusers. Such women, due to their painful childhood and early youth, have reasons to fear their vulnerability in relation to men. Also, women who find themselves betrayed by a man after long-term relationships are often afraid to bond with other men and look for a way out by engaging in same-sex relationships. Women who were sexually abused or raped as children or adolescents may find it difficult or almost impossible to trust men.

Another important reason for same-sex preferences in women is poorly developed female gender identity; often expressed in difficulties in relations with the mother - emotionally unavailable or unwilling to affirm her daughter's femininity, then rejection by peers and a bad opinion of her own body. [38]

Spiritual degeneration

Homosexuality is the spiritual degeneration of a human being in its earliest stage of growing up and adopting a view of reality - and through the unfiltered contents of consciousness - the reflection of the disease does not appear immediately, but with the development of sexuality. Only then does this severe psychic aberration appear on the scene of consciousness and become a problem; antisocial behavior, aggressiveness and suffering for both the environment and the patient, i.e. the patient.

Homosexuality can be briefly defined as a complex of several psychological, mental and social disorders as a complex of male immaturity and avoidance of responsibility; immaturity, retarded development (infantility) with retrograde effects of the childhood phase from the age of 3 to 9, inability to adapt to a normal social and mental environment. That's why they try to change not themselves, but their environment. Thereby they cause the effect of resistance and conflict at all levels.

The definition of lesbianism is: Sexual emptiness without a penis and the resulting fear and hatred of men.

Mental immaturity, infantilism and an envy complex towards a man and a guilt complex towards the father. The feeling of inferiority due to not having a penis like a man is hidden in the envy complex towards a man, and in relation to the guilt complex towards the father - incestuous desire.

It is a so-called psychological disorder. 'Manslaughter' or 'butch', and the so-called psychological disorder "femme" lesbians are the same, but with an added guilt and fear complex due to their unconscious desire for a penis. All lesbian 'femmes' are afraid of men and hate men because they are afraid of themselves. Consciousness filters do not allow the real content to come out because it could have disastrous consequences for the person (Jung proved this with examples).

Therefore, homosexuality is a disorder of mental retardation in the process of psychological transition from childhood to the sexual age of being, and the disorder is reflected with the awakening of the sexual complex and, later, increasingly in the pattern of antisocial conflict with the environment.

Lesbianism is a disorder of envy of masculinity and fear of masculinity at the same time, creating mental confusion and sexual dysfunction in the psychological development of the sexual complex in accordance with the natural law of morphology.

Homosexuality is not formally recognised as a mental illness in the United States (by the American Psychiatric Association). Some mental health professionals, however, disagree: a few years after homosexuality was removed from the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DMA), most psychiatrists in America viewed homosexuality as a pathology, and most psychiatrists around the world still continues to view same-sex urges as a sign of mental illness. [39]

Nature recognises only reproduction

With all of the above in mind, imagine the harmful consequences a child raised by homosexual parents can have. Well-known sociologist dr. Milanka Vujičić says about homosexuals:

"From a sociological point of view, for a child, the healthy development of a child's identity is extremely harmful for homosexuals to raise a child. Nature recognizes only reproduction, and all these varieties and errors of nature we must, willy-nilly, reject and our planet can survive only in a balance between plus and minus. We must be in a relationship of strict gender determination, and I, as a sociologist and a woman, I believe that this is the only correct way and that one should decide on it, although there is a big media campaign to popularise homosexuality, and I am afraid that in the near future it will be a shame not to be homosexual, so one should turn to natural behavior, naturally cultivated. I am for natural laws." [40]

"Apostasy of the worst kind"

Dr Jovan Toševski, head of the anatomy department at the medical faculty in Serbia, is a declared liberal and a leading expert on issues of human sexuality in this region. When Toševski speaks, the scientific community listens. In his book "Hidden Sexuality" he writes:

"Male homosexuality represents the deficiency of at least one of the two main drives of men according to the morphopsychological model of man, primarily the drive for sexual union with a woman. Homosexuality is one of the most dangerous phenomena for our species. The influence of women on the increase in the number of acquired homosexual men, which has been increasing in recent decades, is striking. Male homosexuality is favored by the strong biopower first of the mother, and then of the entire environment, and the victims are those persons of the male sex who have weak masculinity at birth. These individuals easily succumb to female influence, even taking on female behavior patterns.

Human homosexuality, which is considered an alternative to sexuality, is in fact a consciously unjustified orientation that seems easier and different from the obligations imposed by masculinity. In addition, homosexuality cannot be subsumed under the category of sexuality, because it denies the basic premise of sexuality (the relationship of opposite sexes). In this sense, homosexuality represents apostasy of the worst kind that can be placed in the group of pathological disorders and does not deserve to be placed under the umbrella of concepts related to the term sexuality, because it denies the most important mode of living nature - bisexuality." [41]

The starting point for declaring homosexuality abnormal is the fact that the entire human anatomy and psychology is shaped in the direction of reproduction; the natural object of sexuality is therefore the other sex. If this evidence is lost from sight or suppressed, it is a sign of mental disorder.

Destructive sources of pleasure

Homosexuality and similar phenomena (lesbianism, bisexuality) are forms of destructive sources of pleasure that encourage people to engage in even more destructive and morbid activities. According to research, 83% of homosexuals have sexual relations with more than 50 partners during their lifetime, and 29% of them with more than 1000 partners, and only 1/16 lives with a partner in a relationship for some time?! [42]

The sexual perversions that homosexuals and similar persons enter into exceed the worst horrors and the most morbid scenes of Hollywood production. When conducting police investigations of the types of crimes committed in different social communities, the conclusion is clearly reached that murders committed in homosexual communities are the most terrible, followed by terrible massacres and torture of the victim. It only further illustrates the state of mind of the people in such communities. In 1998, the results of a scientific study were published, showing that one out of three homosexuals attempts suicide. [43] The study provides evidence of a strong connection between the risk of suicide and bi/homo sexual orientation in men. And other articles talk about it, like the one published in the journal Pediatrics, on risk factors for suicide attempts in homosexual and bisexual youth (14-21 years). Homosexuals who die of natural causes live an average of 18 years less than heterosexuals. [44]

Homosexual behavior is dangerous in itself and homosexuals (epidemiologically speaking) are therefore always categorised together with drug addicts, prostitutes and promiscuous people. Homosexuals in the US have a 44 times higher chance of getting AIDS. [45] More than half a million of the total of one million people in the US who have AIDS are homosexuals. [46] Homosexuals have a higher chance of contracting Hepatitis A and B, the same with syphilis - 65% of all cases of syphilis infection in the USA are made up of homosexuals, although they certainly do not make up 65% of the population. [47] Homosexuals are the main 'carrier' and the reason why syphilis, which was almost eradicated 10 years ago, has reappeared in statistically significant numbers. [48] Also 15% of homosexuals he has chlamydia. [49] The occurrence of gonorrhoea is 3.68 times more common in homosexuals, at the same time 14% of homosexuals are infected with it. [50] In the same country, it was recorded that Epstein-Barr virus type 2 has 39% of homosexuals. [51]

The use of lubricants increases the probability of rectal sexual infection 3 times - lubricant has a toxic effect on rectal tissue and cells, and is used by 90% of homosexuals. Scientists even claim that the use of lubricants among homosexuals is more common than the use of means of protection against sexually transmitted diseases. [52] But the manual for HIV prevention published by 'Iskorak' and financed by the city of Zagreb and the Ministry of Health recommends the exact opposite:

"A lot of lubricants both on the penis and in the ass." [53]

That the sex they practice is unhealthy is clear from the fact that homosexuals are 17 times more likely to get rectal cancer. [54] Should we even say that normal use of organs does not lead to damage?! Homosexuals are 20 times more likely to consume methamphetamine (a synthetic drug) than the rest of the population, which is linked to HIV, namely, 43% of newly infected with HIV in LA were also on methamphetamine. [55]

Homosexuals have a reduced life expectancy by 8 to 20 years, chronic, possibly fatal liver disease - infectious hepatitis that increases the risk of liver cancer, a disease of the immune system that is almost always fatal - including accompanying tumor diseases, pneumonia, colon cancer which is often fatal, various intestinal diseases and other infectious diseases, a much higher risk of suicide. [56]

Infantile methods of self-comfort (masturbation, fantasising) easily lead to psychological entrapment. Since the cause of homosexuality is some kind of neurosis, many cases suffer from depression, psychosomatic difficulties, fears, and paranoid tendencies are not rare either. The percentage of borderline psychotics is higher than in the general population. Addiction to alcohol and drugs is also common. Michael Bailey, a researcher who is on the side of the homosexual lobbies, admits that those who live a homosexual lifestyle expose themselves to a significantly greater risk of suffering from certain emotional problems, including suicidal tendencies, severe depressions and anxiety neuroses. [57] Dr Satinover concludes: "The connection between anal intercourse and constantly changing partners is the most dangerous behavioural profile!" [58]

Because of all these statistics, homosexuals are prohibited from donating blood (in the USA since 1983). Not because the leading people at the Transfusion Institute are 'homophobes' but out of fear for those who would receive such blood. Do they indiscriminately and institutionally discriminate against the entire homosexual population in that way? But of course! But homosexual activists don't think of protesting against it, because then the doctors would present statistical data, and homosexual activists don't want to talk about it in public.

Instead of a conclusion

The Holy Scriptures of the New Testament, following the consistent Old Testament tradition, call homosexual relations "shameful" and "unnatural"; so St. Paul writes in Rom 1, 26-28: "Therefore God gave them over to shameful passions: their wives exchanged natural intercourse for unnatural ones, and so also men abandoned natural intercourse with women and were inflamed with lust for one another, and men with men do shamefully and they themselves receive the well-deserved wages of their deviation. And since they did not consider it worthy to hold on to the knowledge of God, God gave them over to an invalid mind and they do what is not fitting".

Manual for Defense Against Gay Activists

Political Conspiracy The political decision to declare homosexuals and lesbians 'mentally healthy' in 1973 by a section of American psychiatrists was not accepted throughout the world. In many countries, doctors still treat this severe mental disorder, and in dangerous cases, legislation excludes such persons from the free functioning of society. But, through the OUN, for decades various lobbies have been trying to push for the adoption of laws on the 'equality' of homosexuals and lesbians in all countries of the world. One of our most respected psychiatrists, dr. Vladimir Gruden says:

"Homosexuality should not be released from the chain, but its legalization should be prevented!"

Homosexuals have thus become a weapon in the hands of the powerful, which is used in the 'taming of candidates', for the club of the new world order, for countries where the normal, traditional order is still in force. There are regions and peoples in the world that are more infected with this mental disorder than others. The source of this disorder is primarily the United States and Western Europe. Various lobbies try to declare this disorder not only 'normal' but also the only 'correct' one, and normal people are in fact - mentally disturbed because 'they are not whole'.

Those homosexuals, who really have a problem, know very well that it is neither normal nor natural, let alone desirable. They know where it leads, and they don't expose themselves in public.

The purpose of this expansion of homosexuality is an attack on the natural order between man and woman, in which it is denied, or at least considered 'irrelevant', with the purpose of weakening the male component, thereby encouraging women to rebel (through feminism and lesbianism) and to fight for a place. under the sun'. As a result we have disorder in bed, then in marriage, and finally the disintegration of the family as the nucleus of society. Without a family, without a foundation and a sense of belonging, a person is like a leaf torn from a tree with which the wind does what it wants.

Patients deny their illness

The worst sufferers often deny their illness. Homosexuals are both mentally and physically deformed. When a seriously ill person is brought to an insane asylum, the worst thing for him is if he publicly declares that he is not insane. Such people's straitjackets are even tighter. Likewise, the straitjackets of homosexual activists should be tightened, and they should not be set free to poison children, youth, family, and society with their decadent behavior. And not only are they released as 'healthy', but they are even invested in their propaganda, in promoting decadence and immorality. And all this for taxpayers' money, because the state spends HRK 400,000 on insurance alone for one gay parade, and homosexual associations are on the state's payroll every year.

Associations of mental patients

While so much media space is given to the associations 'Iskorak', 'Kontra', 'Roda', while the state finances these associations of mentally ill people, do normal citizens still have any human rights? "Rights" that Westerners are full of? As citizens, do we have the right to our own attitude, our own upbringing of our child? Do we have the right to be who we want to be and not what the homosexual lobbies would like to remake us into? Where and by which article of the Constitution of the Republic of Croatia is the right to their own way of life guaranteed to normal people?

Parades of Decadence

Because the propagation of homosexuality and gay parades bother every normal man and woman. These are parades of decadence and the creation of a society of violence against normal people. If something has become common or people are systematically used to it, it does not mean that it has become normal. Sex between two men or two women is not normal. If someone is attracted to such a thing, it does not mean that he is allowed to practice it. Even if he practices it, it does not mean that he has the right to go out on the street with a banner and demand that it be respected. Every homosexual who has any form of intimate contact with another man on the street, or a woman with another woman commits violence against a normal person who is forced to watch (violence can enter through the eyes and ears) this abomination. When it is talked about publicly, the answer is only slander and howling.

San Francisco as a warning

Croatia is starting to look a little like San Francisco, where homosexual activists harass all dissenters. When homosexuals first appeared in San Francisco, they were met with condemnation from the local population. Their request then was 'only that no one touches them'. When they got it, the homosexuals demanded 'equality', and when they got it, they took the whole city under their control, starting from the mayor to the local politicians, the police chief, etc. Today in San Francisco, homosexuals persecute all dissenters, and their buildings, even churches, are demolished and burned. It is a pattern that has been repeated many times in history and will be repeated wherever this disease is allowed to spread.

It is a classic abuse of democracy. Heterosexuals who joined homosexual activists are also to blame. Doctor G. van der Aardweg says:

"There is no excuse for all those heterosexuals who subscribe to the ideology of 'homosexuality is normal'... Their inner feeling tells them that there is something wrong with homosexuality, but they prefer to babble repeating the general extended opinion... Considering that what they do humanely, they actually contribute more and more to tragic homosexual careers... In addition, they contribute to the general insecurity about what is normal sexuality and marriage and thus promote the destruction of traditional families."<sup>2</sup>

Dr. writes similarly. Toszewski:

"The question remains whether the arrogant attitude towards one's own kind does not stem from the excess tolerance of the environment, which has been observed in the framework of the general liberalisation of social relations in recent decades. Thus, according to the ATN agency, the state of Colorado, which protected lesbians and homosexuals, faced a boycott of visitors to winter centers from other American states, who regularly went there on vacation. This means that there is resistance of the heterosexual part of the population towards homosexuals and their organized unhindered activity even in America, which is considered a mold of Western democracy.

The protection and legalization of homosexuality is an example of abuse of the democratic achievements of civilization. A similar thing happened in ancient Greece, where democracy was developed at that time. Hormonal handicap in the sense of a lack of male endocrine factors is not an excuse and serves homosexuals as a favorite excuse for their unmasculine activity, which many of today's cultures laconically leave to the actors themselves."<sup>3</sup>

It should be noted that homosexual activists refer to ancient Greece when they want to defend their views. In ancient Greece, it was not about homosexuality, but about ephebophilia or pederasty, the sexual relationship between young men of adolescent age and older men who were their sponsors. An ancient society in which every third inhabitant was a slave, a society that collapsed due to immorality, should not be a role model for anyone. In addition, neither the ancient Greek, nor the Latin, nor the ancient Hebrew languages have a word for homosexuals, but only for homosexual intercourse. The hypocrisy and double criteria of homosexual activists come to the fore again, although they are the ones who consider themselves contemporary and claim that their parades are the result of the maturing of society, in the absence of arguments they refer to a society that collapsed 1,500 years ago.

The whole terminology of homosexual activists is twisted. They identify themselves with their disorder. dr. J. Harvey says that the word homosexual should be avoided because there are no homosexuals, only people with a homosexual disorder. A person cannot be identified with his disorder, it does not determine his identity. It is similar with the terms 'gay' and 'homophobia', which they use in a twisted sense.

Stealing the word 'gay'

Until a few years ago, the word 'gay' could not be heard on the road and in public, especially in the media, and it was even more difficult to come across it. Today, it has a twisted meaning. It is used by homosexual activists to alleviate their problematic nature. But the word 'gay' does not suit them at all. Since when are they 'cheerful', 'beautiful', 'lively'? In reality, we meet and come across only frustrated, silly people with artificial behaviour. Nothing about it is 'gay'. Only sadness, misery, frustration, disease and amorality. It is a simple theft of this word 'gay' ie. gai which in French as an adjective means - lively. Therefore, there is no word or mention of homosexuals, transvestites, lesbians and others anywhere. Like they're not 'gay'

The term homophobia - an upside-down saw, a political label

Homophobia is an unprofessional, trivial name for people who have a certain, lesser or greater degree of aversion to homosexuals. That aversion is an instinctive and intuitive reaction to the sick and unnatural relationship and way of life of the homosexual population. Likewise, people have an aversion to various deviations such as necrophilia, pedophilia, incest... By the same principle, those who practice necrophilia, pedophilia or incest could call the aversion of normal people to such behavior necrophobia, pedophilia, incestophobia... But we know that it has nothing to do with phobias. Any mentally healthy person will feel a certain aversion to such unnatural behaviour.

Therefore, the name homophobia is a mere fabrication and has nothing to do with the medical term phobia. Otherwise, a simple or specific phobia is a permanent, unreasonable fear caused by the presence or imagining of a specific object or situation that does not represent a real danger. Exposure to an object or situation leads to an immediate reaction in the sense of a high level of anxiety or to an attempt to avoid the object or situation. Symptoms associated with a phobia or a pattern of avoidant behaviour related to certain objects or situations can significantly affect the ability to function on a daily basis. Adults with a specific phobia recognize that the fear is excessive and unreasonable, but still cannot resist it. A person feels fear when coming to a certain situation that he is afraid of. Physical symptoms are expressed, which are intensified: sweaty palms, red face, palpitations, chest pain, the person feels as if there is no air (feeling that he will suffocate), shaking hands and legs, trembling voice. It is clear to everyone that people labelled as 'homophobes' have nothing to do with this definition nor do they experience such symptoms.

Originally, homophobia was used in psychiatric jargon to describe an individual's fear of their own homosexual inclinations. However, homosexual activists stole the term and redefined it to mean any negative attitude, hatred or 'fear' of homosexuals. As a rhetorical weapon, it is intended to discredit, belittle and humiliate anyone who opposes homosexual behavior or the legalization of homosexuality.

Of course, the universal inclusion of all opponents as homophobes is not highlighted. Publicly, homosexual activists will attach the label of homophobe to declared violent haters, such as skinheads, for example. in order to draw attention to the character traits of such individuals and show what kind of people are actually opposed to homosexuality. However, in practical discourse, the label of homophobe will be attached to any individual who thinks that homosexual behavior is bad, abnormal or harmful. To reveal this fact, homosexual activists and advocates should be asked to explain the difference between homophobic and non-homophobic opposition to homosexuality.

The term homophobia defines opposition to homosexuality as a mental illness. It is a special pleasure for homosexual activists because homosexuality was removed from the list of psychiatric disorders in 1973. So now they are healthy, and all those who speak against homosexuality are mentally ill. Of course, it is clear to everyone that a stroke of a pen does not correct disorders, nor can a stroke of a pen make someone disordered.

The term homophobia serves as the semantic equivalent of 'racism' to show the public that opposition to homosexuality is tantamount to prejudice against racial minorities. In general, the aforementioned aspects of homophobia serve to silence and shame openers. So when someone opposes homosexuality, homosexual behavior, the legalization of homosexuality, gay parades... they can immediately be labeled as mentally ill or racist. So, the term homophobia is an illusory term, an upside-down saw invented by 'gay' sages to use as a rhetorical weapon against opponents.

The penetration of evil into normal society

When the Nazis used the same methods to educate children, only the attitudes were completely different from the attitudes of homosexual activists, it was brainwashing, disgusting propaganda and the like, and when homosexual associations do it, then it is 'diversity', 'tolerance', maturing society'...

What kind of 'difference' are homosexuals and lesbians, pedophiles and feminists? It's an attempt at subterfuge. It is not about 'diversity' but about the penetration of crime into normal human society. About the attempt to brainwash children, about the creation of a society with twisted values, in which the most normal citizens would be tortured ('treated') in psychiatric institutions, from some kind of false disease of 'homophobia'.

There is less and less morality in society, everyone has "cocooned" in their little lives and daily preoccupations, while people with sick worldviews promote their view of morality. And they 'make known' their preferences to all of us without any restraint. And the 'ordinary' man allows it and says: "Well, I don't care, let them live as they want, as long as they don't bother me, there's no problem, they're people too..." Conformism is the biggest disease of this society. Conformism and false tolerance.

What kind of 'maturing' of society are we talking about? If society matures and gradually accepts homosexuals, then this 'maturing' of society should also be reflected in the reduction of corruption, crime, violence... But no! There is more and more violence, corruption and crime, as well as more and more sexual deviations - homosexuality, pedophilia, incest... Sound logic says that queer parades and violence and corruption are evidence of the rotting and deterioration of society, not maturing.

The question arises, where is Western civilization going? Hasn't all this already happened? History has shown that when society reaches a certain level of immorality, it completely disintegrates with drastic consequences. Many empires have fallen because of their immorality. We cannot remove protection from natural marriage and family, and expect to have a unique infrastructure. The destruction of basic ethical and moral principles has far-reaching implications that affect all branches of society and the state. The gay parade is precisely the crown of that immorality, which denies and mocks all moral principles and laws, family, marriage, tradition, dignity and faith of the entire society.

Western society inevitably goes to ruin, just as the Roman Empire went, when it lost its masculine combativeness, when it was left without heart and courage, when the slopes of Rome were full of corpses of unborn children, when Roman whores commanded perverted senators, and pederasty was normal' phenomenon among high military officers and ministers, lesbianism and cults of women's religions were popular, and morality was considered "barbaric" and a sign of "uncivilization". Then the barbarians came... and you know the rest.

Conclusion

In the end, in a democratic society, sexual preferences, habits, desires and customs are the personal matter of each of us, and those of us with a normal attitude certainly do not think of wearing a banner - NORMAL! But will we still have to?

Homosexuals Enter Kindergartens!

Nikola Marinković

In Germany, homosexuals enter kindergartens through reworked fairy tales about "the king and the king".

Belgrade, 21.07.2011

If it is true that European countries are "ahead of us", then it is not bad to see what awaits us when we cross the difficult path of "transition". In this sense, last year the first gay parade was held, this year gay marriages are mentioned in the Civil Code, so the latest news from Germany, where homosexuals are introduced to kindergartens through "fairy tales", seems, unfortunately, useful:

"A princess is wanted...", writes about the new educational initiative in Germany, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung journalist Lidia Harder, and explains: "...because the prince would like to get married. But he doesn't like any of them.

Not the one from Texas, not the one from Greenland, not the one from India. Then they introduced him to Princess Liebegunde, and the prince fell in love, but – with her brother Herlich. A lavish wedding was organised, after which the king and the king together ruled the country".

It is a story for children aged four and up, which, together with other books, has become part of an educational kit, or rather, a briefcase, which will be in use in primary schools in Berlin from autumn. The author quotes from one of the picture books in that set: "A long, long time ago, most families looked like this in books: dad, mom, little boy, little girl."

A long, long time ago?

The matter becomes clearer when you consider that the mentioned suitcase is part of the "Self-determination and acceptance of sexual diversity" initiative. That initiative was adopted in the Berlin Senate in 2009 with the unanimous support of all parliamentary groups, with the aim of combating discrimination against "lesbians, gays, bisexuals, transsexuals and intersex people".

Similarities with the situation in Serbia

The Commissioner for the Protection of Equality, Nevena Petrušić, criticised textbooks in secondary schools for promoting the traditional family, "homophobia", neglecting "marginal social groups", such as the Roma. With the reform of secondary education, which was postponed for the 2012/2013 school year. This year, textbooks in Serbia would be reformed in accordance with gender equality and broadly understood human rights.

The way to go is obvious. First, the gay parade is allowed, which is justified by the "promotion of diversity", and the accusations that it is just the beginning are silenced. Then, with the introduction of the new Civil Code, gay communities are introduced into the legal order, legalized, which is the second step.

After that, it is necessary to reform the education system in accordance with the requirements of LGBT ideology. At the university, it is introduced through student organisations, which are infiltrated by party cadres, as well as through ideologized professors.

Nevena Petrušić's accusations show that LGBT ideology has reached secondary schools, while the process of inclusion and limiting the rights of teachers is preparing the ground in elementary schools as well.

Germany has apparently already reached kindergarten, so this country is once again, in a certain way, a victim of a totalitarian ideology that must spread to all social levels.

One question arises: why is it necessary to infiltrate gay ideology even in kindergartens? Why is it necessary to accustom 4-year-old children to homosexuals through fairy tales? It is obvious that LGBT ideology cannot function without aggressiveness and imposition.

Connections between global powers, "elite" prostitution and gay "marriages"

If it is so, the birthday party of the century of the heir to the longest-lived banking empire in the world, Nathaniel-Net Rothschild, is also proof, which is still being written about in the world media. Along with gay entertainers and transvestite decor of the million-pound party, there was a small army of beauties in which the heroines from this story provided undoubted support.

At the two-day party at the Lido Mar pool, pier one of the marina and the yacht "Queen K" of the Russian oligarch Oleg Deripaska, engaged girls from the Balkans and from Russia danced to the disco rhythm of the seventies.

Gay wedding as an overture

When talking about the "Lido Mar" swimming pool, it should be said that, according to "Vijesti" information, the first gay wedding in Montenegro served as a prelude to Net Rothschild's birthday party. The "newlyweds" were two Swedes, and with this act the secret life of the "forbidden city" of Peter Munk was made official in a unique way.

Florida School Secretly Colluded to Alter Student's Gender Identity

Parents of a 13 years old daughter filed a lawsuit against her school for "violating their parental rights."

"Queer Health Educators" from the Children's Hospital LA put together this explicit sex pamphlet for the youth.

The Children's Hospital LA has the largest "Center for Transyouth Health and Development" in the country.

THREAD: 2 teachers at a California school reportedly coached a 12 year old into a trans identity behind her parents back. The school also changed her name and pronouns without informing the parents.

The school reportedly called the parents in for a meeting where they informed them that their daughter is trans. The teacher then proceeded to call CPS on them when they didn't use the "correct" name and pronouns.

Channel 4: ascertaining gender identity. During data collection, information on gender was initially collected using four options listed above. However, towards the end of the data collection phase, the "Transgender" option was modified to "Other" to make it more inclusive. For this study, we restricted our analysis to only those participants from the first phase of data collection who could choose from "Male", "Female", "Transgender" and "Prefer not to say", as this makes it clearer for interpreting the data. This resulted in 514,100 individuals whose gender was either "Male" ( $N = 193,398$ ), "Female" ( $N = 317,891$ ), or "Transgender" ( $N = 2811$  or 0.55%).

Channel 4: ascertaining diagnosis of autism and other conditions. 27,919 participants (5.4%) indicated they had an autism diagnosis (cisgender males = 13,317; cisgender females = 13,934, transgender and gender-diverse = 668). Diagnoses of autism and other psychiatric conditions were asked using the question: "Have you been formally diagnosed with any of the following (please click all that apply)?" For other psychiatric conditions, participants could choose from:

Transgender (n-2811)

Transgender autistic (n-668)

Percent of Transgenders that are autistic=23.7%

23.7%

That's fucking quarter of all Transgenders
being autistic

Discussion

In this study, we investigated three primary questions, and an additional exploratory question using five different, large-scale datasets. First, across all five datasets, transgender and gender-diverse individuals were 3.03 to 6.36 times as likely to be autistic
